A letter to my future self.

Hi, my future self. This letter should have arrived to you after 5 years, from my earliest time, in 2028th year.

So, how is it going? What are you doing most time? How are my parents are? Are you OK?

I know that I won't get the answers anymore, but I'm sure you will need those questions, to finally been answered, and realize where and how you are.

And will you try to think everything that, that me remind of your past self, the one you probably forgot or lost time ago.

I'm a work people student, trying hard to keep up with everything. Another world of self of efficiency & load with business. Learning playing on guitar, participating in every online courses I see, might now those are programming and project-management courses. I also start-ted working on some big projects based on psychology, that which I'm sure you still love and working on, at least I hope so. I also hope you found someone to listen and cherish you, who especially supports you.

More over I hope you're improving your attitude and going to your so called dream-job, if you haven't got gotten it was - psychotherapist, or at least someone that is able to help other people.

I hope and I want to believe that I'm doing not for nothing, yet wherever you are, I hope you're happy.
"Are you?" - the question you should know the answer to right now.

Whatever your answer is, I wish you good luck and to be proud that you made it to this age.

This is it.

Take care of yourself and the ones you love.

~~Love~~ Wish best wishes.

Your past self.

P.S. Don't forget to text your parents frequently and never to be rude to them.
